IG - AIR SUPP

MEMORANDUM FOR: Secretary, CIA Management Committee

SUBJECT : [REDACTED]

REFERENCE : Memo dtd 8 June 73 to ES/CIA Management Committee
fr IG, subj: Inspector General's Review of Agency
Air Support Activities [REDACTED]

25X1

1. Earlier this year the Inspector General (IG) conducted a review of Agency Air Support Activities, and one of the activities studied was the [REDACTED]. On the basis of this review, the IG recommended that [REDACTED] be liquidated. This recommendation, along with others contained in the IG's report, was considered by the CIA Management Committee on 12 July 1973. It was decided, however, that before taking such drastic action, [REDACTED] and the services it provides should be studied further and the results reviewed by the Committee in late November 1973.

2. This study has been completed and it generally supports the recommendations made by the IG. The study, however, was conducted before the energy crisis developed, and one desirable alternative to [REDACTED] was the increased use of POV's, especially between here and [REDACTED].

[REDACTED] The POV is a preferred method of travel to the [REDACTED] and is by far the cheapest when one or more passengers accompany the driver. If, however, the Administration decides to use gas rationing as a means of conserving fuel, and this results in a severe cutback in the use of private automobiles, we will have to reconsider the POV alternative and rely more extensively on [REDACTED]. It is questionable, though, whether [REDACTED] will be able to accommodate such a heavy increase in passenger requirements. Consequently, we have begun looking at ways to supplement [REDACTED], probably by using buses.

3. Indications are that a decision will be reached by the White House within the next 90 days on whether we are to have gas rationing. During this time we will again review the use of [REDACTED], taking into consideration the possibility that gasoline for POV's will be in short supply. We plan to complete this review by March 1974, at which time we will submit our findings to the Management Committee for its consideration.
